giate races is concerned, says Doctor Spacth, "we have put ourselves on record frankly as not in the competition for four-mile honors. I do not believe that four-mile race involves a severe strain upon the man properly trained for such a face, than a two-mile race. I have rowed all distances from a mile to four miles, and my recollection is that the one-mile races were the most punishing.

"I am convinced that for the majority of men proper training for the four-mile race involves a development of the heart and lungs which will be a positive handicap later on, unless they lead unusually active lives. As our colleges are supposed to fit men for intellectual rather than physical ominence. It seems a positive wrong to permit or even encourage a physical over-development which will unfit them for their future tasis. The more highly specialized our training methods become. The greater will be this danger. The remedy ites in encouraging such forms of athletic competition as men may safely take withbut too strenuous and too prolonged a pellition as men may safely take with-but too strenuous and too prolonged a period of training. In this respect there is a great deal of difference be-tween a two and a four-mile race.

"Against the fact that very few colleges have four-mile courses on their home waters makes it necessary for them to spend considerable time away from home at such places at Pough-keepsie and New London; this involves the maintenance of an extensive and expensive establishment, which becomes a heavy drain on the general athetic treasury, and encourages the arrangment of profitable football schedules to help defray the expenses of the crews."

Doctor Spaeth is strongly in favor of a series of short distance races, all rowed on home courses. Although he does not specify it, this is in line with Princeton's hope that some day a week of rowing in the form of a round robin tournament, with no races more Training Expenses Heavy.

Critics of English rowing methods are getting considerable satisfaction out of the predicament of the Yale and Pennsylvania crews. The Yalis eight, coached by Guy Nickalis, of England, and the Pennsylvania crew, instructed by Joe Ward, a Canadlan, uaing English methods for the most part, have been beaten this spring with the greatest regularity. Their respective coaches and followers are worried over the outlook but praying devoutly that victory will crown their final efforts. Yale has one more chance to make good when her crew meets Harvard at New London. Pennsylvania's only remaining hope is a triumph at Poughkeepsie.

Nickalls' Revolutionary Method.s With the exception that Pennsylvania beat Yale last April, neither vania beat Yale last April, neither crew has won an important race this year. The Elis, after losing to Pannsylvania, lost also to Princeton and Cornell, while Pennsylvania was soundly beaten by the Navy, and then by Princeton and Columbia. Following their last two races—Pennsylvania in the American Henley and Yale at Ithaca—their coaches ordered wholesale shifts to find, if possible stronger combinations. Joe Wright has moved his men about continuously, but he won't know what to expect until he gets his men at Poughkeepsie. Guy Nickalls was even more revolutionary gets his men at Poughkeepsie. Guy Nickalls was even more revolutionary after Yale's decisive defeat by Prince-ton and Cornell. He tore his entire eight to pieces and early this week announced that every veteran who re-gained his place in the boat would have to win it on merit alone.
